

David Cotterrell: ISEA - 17.08.15

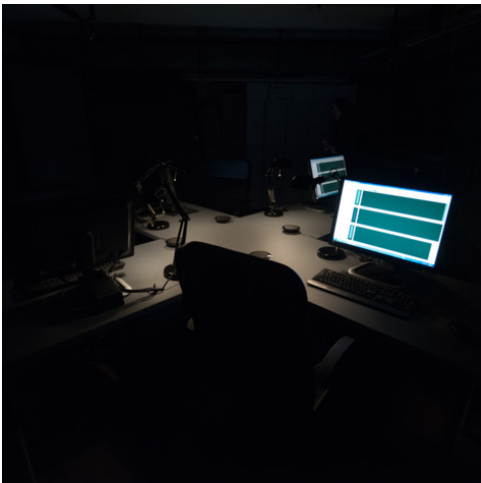

Date: 17th August 2015

At ISEA 2015, David is showing The Ostrich Effect. This generative installation was built using commercial automated call-centre servers, customising their IVR (Interactive Voice Response) programs to broadcast and handle telephone campaigns. It explores the recursive loops that might occur in a hypothetical scenario. The computer-based conversation will never be resolved and continuously re-attempted.

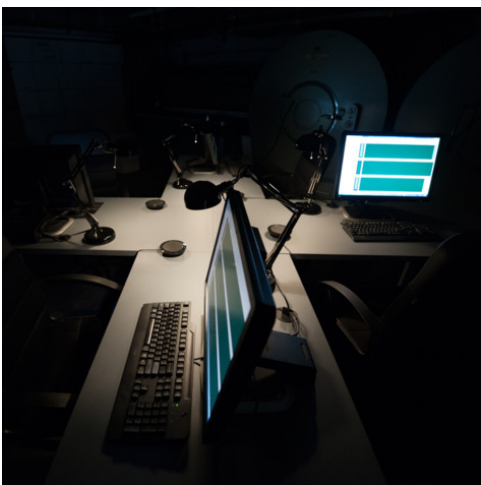

Location: Fur Vault (enter off alley) (5 W 4th Ave, Vancouver, BC V5Y 1G2)

Launch Event: Monday, August 17 7:00pm - 10:00pm

While in Vancouver will also present the paper, Ostrich Effects, co-authored with Jordan Kaplan.
